

TRINITY PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

"We would see Jesus and be transformed into His Likeness"

Dear Friends,

While I spent some time in the prayer booths last night, I felt a deep sense of connection to you. As I prayed and contemplated, I was aware of all who sat where I was sitting and all who will sit where I was sitting. All fellow brothers and sisters who are seeking to know Jesus and to be empowered by the Holy Spirit to be the church in a world of suffering and in great need of compassion, mercy, justice. I felt connected with you in beseeching God on the matters of our community, of South Africa and the world.

The period between Ascension and Pentecost was a time of waiting for the disciples. It wasn't an idle waiting. It was a time when they gathered together, to worship and pray. In their waiting they were building unity, they were setting their minds on things above. They were eagerly anticipating the promise of the Spirit of Jesus whom he was sending to empower them and reveal to them the power of the Kingdom of God.

The elders have been reflecting on our, Trinity's, vision and mission. One of the values we espouse to is "we seek to undergird all our activities with prayer – both corporate and individual." This encouraged us as we planned for the 10 Days of Prayer. It is not limited to these 10 days but in this focused time we are more attuned to listening to and speaking with God for His Kingdom on earth.

If you have yet to come and participate in the prayer booths, there is still an opportunity to do so until Sunday.

With love and awe filled appreciation,

Iain

John Ellis is a South African musician who used to play in a band called Tree63. I remember going to a number of their concerts and singing their songs during worship: songs such as “King”, “Treasure” and “Joy”. He went through some challenging times in his life and the band, Tree63, stopped producing music and the members went their own ways. The following song is from John’s most recent solo album called “Growing Silent”.
